

McMaster edXpress Program

McMaster University is dedicated to the pursuit of lifelong learning and skills development. We believe that lifelong learning extends to any age group and to any stage of your life.

That's where you come in! We need your skills and expertise to help us build this successful program and meet the demands of our learners. Categories include, Business and Technology, Health and Well-being, Arts and Sciences.

- Are you itching to get back in the classroom?
- Do you have an interesting course concept?
- Have you got an innovative approach to teaching you'd like to share?

Qualifications: The ideal candidate will have a minimum of an undergraduate degree or equivalent in an appropriate field of study and experience teaching in adult education is required.

Assets: Additional requirements include broad sector knowledge, strong interpersonal and organizational skills, proven research skills and problem-solving ability, computer acumen, and a demonstrated ability to enable others to learn.

Course Format: Courses are delivered online using Zoom. A course is 4.5 hours in length and delivered over 3 consecutive weeks at 1.5 hours per session via Zoom. Courses are scheduled throughout the academic year.

Interested candidates: Please send your course proposal (150 words) resume and cover letter to McMaster Continuing Education (Instructor/SME email account), instrapp@mcmaster.ca. Please indicate "edXpress Instructor Application" in the subject line.

Only qualified candidates will be contacted. MCE does not send confirmation of receipt of applications.

Have questions about the process or the program? Contact us at edXpress@mcmaster.ca.